Percent of incoming Kindergartners who meet readiness-to-learn standards in each racial/ethnic group, SY2018-2019

Creating a vibrant Kentucky starts with the state’s youngest citizens. Limited access to high-quality child care, early education, and health care affects school preparedness for children in low-income families and children of color. Other contributors to inadequate school readiness include stressful family circumstances and living in a high-poverty neighborhood.

Percent of incoming Kindergartners who meet readiness-to-learn standards in each racial/ethnic group, SY2016-2017

Creating a vibrant Kentucky starts with the state’s youngest citizens. Limited access to high-quality child care, early education, and health care affects school preparedness for children in low-income families and children of color. Other contributors to inadequate school readiness include stressful family circumstances and living in a high-poverty neighborhood.

Percent of incoming Kindergartners who meet readiness-to-learn standards in each racial/ethnic group, SY2015-2016

Creating a vibrant Kentucky starts with the state’s youngest citizens. Limited access to high-quality child care, early education, and health care affects school preparedness for children in low-income families and children of color. Other contributors to inadequate school readiness include stressful family circumstances and living in a high-poverty neighborhood.
