Kentucky Youth Advocates believes all children deserve to be safe, healthy, and secure. As the independent voice for Kentucky's children, we work to ensure policymakers create investments and policies that are good for all children and help amplify the voices of kids and families across the commonwealth.

We also conduct research and education that informs and recommends solutions to help kids and families succeed, and we present the “state of kids” to communities to help people know how children are faring and how to address problems. We mobilize advocates to take action on behalf of kids and families through rallies, advocacy trainings, partnerships, and action alerts. We help families through our case advocacy program and serve as their guide when they don’t know where to turn. And we engage youth by training the next generation of leaders to advocate for themselves and their communities.

With thousands of materials distributed and event attendees, hundreds of media stories, and more than a million social media impressions each year, KYA is working to make Kentucky the best place in America to be young.

For nearly 20 years, KYA and our fellow advocates for kids have gathered in Frankfort for Children’s Advocacy Day, filling the halls of the Capitol and asking their elected officials to step up for Kentucky kids. What was once a day is now an event-filled week, which features in-person and virtual gatherings, opportunities to connect with legislators, leadership activities for youth, and VIP events. During Children’s Advocacy Week 2023, approximately 1,000 advocates came together to rally on behalf of Kentucky kids. We hosted nine virtual events and our popular in-person Day at the Capitol. More than 15 media outlets covered the week (reaching more than one million Kentuckians), and our social media impressions during the week surpassed 60,000.

Kentucky Youth Advocates believes that what gets measured, gets changed.

For more than 30 years, Kentucky KIDS COUNT has provided the latest child well-being data. Because it is seen and used by everyone from groups of youth in Eastern Kentucky to Cabinet secretaries in Frankfort, KIDS COUNT data is a catalyst for change. Much of the data is available disaggregated by race, making it an important tool to advance racial equity in Kentucky. We at Kentucky Youth Advocates use that data as the foundation for policy recommendations, and many others across the state — including educators, government officials, social workers, and more — utilize the book for everything from grant proposals to classroom materials.

Annual KIDS COUNT County Data Book
Each year, Kentucky Youth Advocates releases the KIDS COUNT County Data Book, which provides data on 17 measures of child well-being and data profiles for each Kentucky county. Numerous media outlets throughout the state covered the book release, reaching more than 1 million Kentuckians. Social media engagement was also strong, with tens of thousands of views throughout the launch campaign.

Kentucky General Assembly KIDS COUNT Calendar
Every legislator — along with key members of the executive branch — receives a General Assembly KIDS COUNT Calendar. Each page of the calendar, which counts down the days of the legislative session, features a data point or other information that encourages legislators to put kids first when developing policy. Every calendar page is also shared across all social media channels on that day of the session. Legislators and their senior staff have told us how valuable the calendars are in providing data and inspiration.
